

Talrick Enjady: Bold Traditions

Southern Plains Indian Museum Presents Talrick Enjady: Bold Traditions

Talrick Enjady is an enrolled member of the Mescalero Apache Tribe. He was raised in the homelands of his people, a Tribal Nation located in south-central New Mexico. Talrick attended the schools on his reservation and graduated from Mescalero Apache High School.

Talrick was raised immersed in Apache customs and traditions which fostered his deep respect for Apache cultural values and practices that have been passed down through generations. During Talrick's formative years his parents, Tommy and Angelita Enjady, recognized his inherent creativity and encouraged the development of his artistic skills. He conveys these traditions, experiences, and community values of his upbringing onto his canvases.

His creative process allows each piece to take shape through experimentation by first sketching on canvas and then adding design work to determine the direction of the artwork. Talrick next adds his subjects, creating each with enhanced silhouettes and carefully selected color for dynamic perspectives. His work incorporates acrylics, graphite, watercolor, pastel, and charcoal. Connecting his art and community, he also uses natural paints from local sources. While Talrick categorizes his paintings as traditional, he invites viewers to experience a bold and unique view of Apache culture.

Crediting the support of his family, as well as self-motivation, Talrick transitioned to a career as a full-time artist in 2022. He has a set of five paintings in the Amerind Museum, Dragoon, Arizona, and paintings in both the Mountain Arts Gallery and Tanner Tradition in Ruidoso, New Mexico. He is excited to show his work at the Southern Plains Indian Museum.

For information or potential purchase of artwork featured in this exhibition, please contact Talrick directly at enjadytj@icloud.com.

August 7 - October 16, 2026

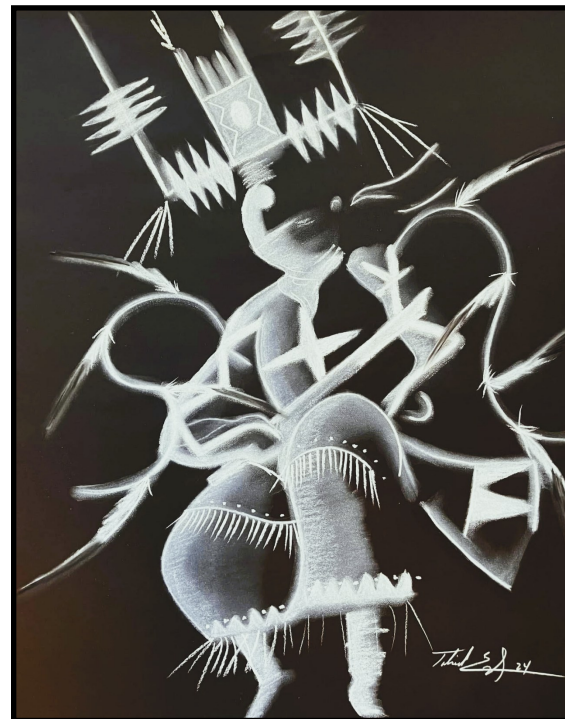

We Come From Lightning
Acrylic on Canvas
©2026 Talrick Enjady

Apache Man
Acrylic on Canvas
©2026 Talrick Enjady

Red Moon
Acrylic on Canvas
©2026 Talrick Enjady

East Blessings
Charcoal on Canvas
©2026 Talrick Enjady

Cover Image:
When Snow Comes
Acrylic on Canvas
©2026 Talrick Enjady